HUNT FOR WATCH AS ONLY CLUE IN TIARKS MYSTERY

Police Hope, Through Time-piece, to Trace Man Who Caused Woman's Death.

An old-fashioned gold watch is being sought to-day by detectives as the only clue to the identity of the person who entered the apartment of Mrs. Caroline Tiarks, at No. 311 West One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Street, on Friday evening and frightened her to death. Whether robbery was the actual motive which brought about the woman's death or whether her arms were bound in bed after she died and the watch then taken to create an impression that a burglar had killed her, the police have not yet determined.

Not the slightest mark to show that the apartment was forcibly entered, has been found by the police, and although the woman's son, Herman Tiarks, and the clerk in his confectionery store, Hans Hoelmeich, both claim the place was ransacked, the detectives on the case deny this. When the police arrived the only sign of disorder they found was an open drawer in the woman's room, from which some old letters and papers were taken. The letters were on a chair and looked as if Mrs. Tiarks might have been reading them over.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Tiarks spent hours with the detectives going over their lists of acquaintances, but no one has been found who answers the description of the man who was seen ringing the apartment doorbell a few hours before the body was found. Maurice Rosen, the law student who lives in the adjoining apartment and who saw and spoke to the man, said that he spoke with a slight German accent and was a well-built man about twenty-five years old and fairly well dressed.

"The old lady is home most of the time," he told Rosen when the latter saw him ringing the bell and explained that he thought no one was at home. The last member of the family to see Mrs. Tiarks before she met her death, was the younger Mrs. Tiarks, her son's wife. She left the apartment about 8 o'clock and went to the store at No. 355 Broadway. At midnight young Hoelmeich left the store to go to the apartment where he boarded with his employer. He says he found his room all upset but thought the older Mrs. Tiarks had been looking for something and he went to bed. Tiarks and his wife came in an hour later, and they have not yet been able to tell the police how the woman's arms were bound when they found her. When the police arrived her arms were found at her side, a piece of rope similar to a rope found in the apartment tied to her right wrist. The woman's body was found in bed, and it is claimed, could not easily have been brought around to her side, and her son does not remember having placed them there. On this account, it is believed by some of the detectives who have been at work on the case that the rope might have been placed on the woman's wrists after she died to create a misleading impression of the manner in which she died.

USES GOLF CLUB ON COW; HAS TO COUNT STROKES

Loses Hole Because Bovine Grabbed Ball and Scorer Saw the Performance.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 28.—There's a rule in golf that every stroke a player makes at a ball is counted. It says nothing about cows, but when the cow has the ball that's a different question. Fred Behring and E. W. Snowden were playing for the Class D championship on the municipal links here yesterday when a cow strolled onto the fairway. To a caddy's attempts to drive it off it replied, "Moo!" Just then Behring swung and his ball went into the cow's mouth. Angered, he chased the animal, beating it with his club. The cow ran to a point near the next hole before it dropped the ball.

Behring putted the ball in and claimed he made the hole in 1. Snowden had made it in 9. The official scorer was appealed to. "You made it in 9," the scorer told Behring. "You struck that cow with your club twenty-seven times before she dropped the ball on the green."

FORGERY CHARGES IGNORED.

Republican Managers Silent About Whitman and Calder Petitions. Charges by Progressive County Chairman O'Connell that the Whitman and Calder petitions for the Progressive primaries contained forged names were answered to-day only by silence from Republican managers. Herbert Parsons, national committee-man and friend of the Governor, said he knew nothing about the affair as it did not come within national campaign scope. Frederick C. Tanner, State Chairman, had the petitions to say, P. J. Kraack, campaign manager for the Governor, said his committee had nothing to do with circulating the Progressive petitions. Senatorial Candidate Calder's manager said his petitions were separate from those of the Governor, although circulated in Fulton County at the same time. Parsons might creep in through the door of an canvasser, he said, but no candidate or committee could be charged with responsibility.

STATEN ISLANDERS WIN A POINT AT GARBAGE HEARING

Statement That Location of Plant Is Bad Admitted by Health Commissioner.

There were some lively fits to-day at the inquiry by the State Health Department on the question of establishing a garbage disposal plant on Staten Island. The hearing, which had a preliminary start some days ago, got fairly under way this forenoon in the Richmond Borough Hall, at St. George, several hundred taxpayers and residents being present when Deputy State Health Commissioner Dr. Lindsey Williams opened the proceedings.

At the outset Assistant Corporation Counsel W. R. Chittenden challenged the right of Commissioner Williams to proceed with the inquiry. He said the law empowered the State Health Department to inquire into existing nuisances, and contended that an investigation could not be made until the garbage plant had been erected and was in operation. He was quickly overruled.

Charles R. Van Etten of Brooklyn, the Vice President of the Metropolitan Hy-Products Company, the corporation which will operate the plant, was the first witness, and he described the contemplated work. He said 2,000 tons of garbage would be handled daily.

The first stir occurred when District Attorney Albert C. Fach asked Public Works Commissioner Henry P. Morrison of Richmond if a better location could not be found. Mr. Chittenden was on his feet objecting before Mr. Morrison could answer and Commissioner Williams indicated that he was inclined to agree that the question was not a proper one. "It is your duty to permit this question," Mr. Fach shouted, "and it is a question which vitally concerns the health and welfare of one hundred thousand residents of Staten Island. The Governor may want this information from you and it is up to you now to take the facts so that you may give them to him."

HUNT RUSSIAN STOWAWAYS

Five Found on Liner Escape When Vessel Ties Up at Brooklyn.

Five stowaways on the Russian liner Hermes, which arrived at her pier in Brooklyn yesterday, apparently do not intend to return and fight for their country if they can help it. They left the ship some time last night and Capt. John Tengstrom has asked the police to find them. The quintette was discovered in the coal bunkers Aug. 8, two days after the Hermes had left Archangel, Russia. They were kept prisoners for a day and finally put to work as stowaways, with a sailor's hammock and fare. One, said to be Adolph Roman, twenty-two years old, an alleged deserter from the Russian navy, had given the captain a list of their names. Two detectives are looking for them.

STONE USED FOR STEEL IN BUILDING THAT FELL, TESTIMONY AT INQUIRY

Two Arrests on Criminal Charges Predicted as Result of Bronx Disaster.

Substitution of stone for steel at an important point in the construction of the Bronx apartment house which collapsed last week, causing the death of seven workmen and the injury of seventeen others, greatly weakened the building, according to testimony developed to-day at the inquiry which District Attorney Martin and Coroner Flynn are conducting into the accident. Mr. Martin said that at least two arrests on charges of criminal negligence might be expected as a result of the investigation.

William Kreyenborg of No. 142 Southern Boulevard, the architect who drew the plans for the building, was the principal witness at to-day's hearing. He said his plans required the installation of a steel girder across the vestibule.

Did the plans require steel temples? asked District Attorney Martin. Temple are used to distribute the weight of girders. "Yes," said Kreyenborg. He added that with steel temples in use the carrying capacity of the vestibule girder would be at least thirty-six tons. "They would weaken the carrying capacity about 65 per cent.," said the architect.

SALESMAN IS INDICTED IN WHITE SLAVE CRUSADE

Nineteen-Year-Old Girl's Admissions Basis for Two Charges—Also Accused by Another.

Two indictments charging white slavery and a third indictment charging criminal assault were to-day returned by the Grand Jury against John Hausenreiter, a salesman, twenty-seven years old and married, of No. 18 West Ninety-sixth Street. The first two indictments charge Hausenreiter with collecting the money earned by Helen Kelves, a nineteen-year-old Hungarian girl. The other indictment charges him with attacking Pauline Mink, sixteen years old, of No. 1 West One Hundred and Eighteenth Street.

Hausenreiter has been in jail for some time on the charge preferred by the Mink girl. It was while the police were investigating this case they heard about the Kelves girl. Assistant District Attorney Smith, who has been conducting the vice investigation, was told that the girl was about to leave the city to escape being a witness. Detectives arrested her at the Grand Central terminal this morning and her admissions led to Hausenreiter's indictment a few hours later.

The May Manton Fashions

THIS is one of the prettiest little frocks that could be offered for the early autumn. It is made of crepe gabardine, with trimming of velvet and the three bands that take the place of the regulation belt are very new and smart. The dress is finished with a little buckle and the metal buckles give the touch of brilliancy that is liked. The dress is a simple one to make and it gives a very smart effect, while it can be copied in different materials. Alpaca is a favorite of the season, and it would be very charming made just in this way, with trimming of velvet or of satin. There are wool crepes that are much liked that would make up attractively, and poplin would be charming dressed after such a manner. If two materials are liked, it would be pretty to make the little bolero-like portion of silk and the lower portion of serge, and the silk could be plain or striped or plaid as liked. Plain taffeta would make a pretty effect or plain chambray would be smart. If a more dressy frock is wanted, chambray or taffeta could be used for the entire garment, with velvet for the trimming, as it is here. Broadcloth always makes up attractively in this way and broadcloth is very pretty in combination either with chambray or with velvet. If it were used for the plaited portion of the dress and velvet for the entire body portion, a very handsome costume would result for the later season. For immediate wear, the lighter materials are, of course, to be preferred. A favorite combination just now is amethyst with dark blue. Until you have seen it you can hardly realize how pretty it is. If this dress were made of blue serge and, in place of the three bands around the waist, were used a Rosalie sash of amethyst satin with the ends embroidered with beads in an Oriental color, a very lovely effect would result. For the sixteen-year size will be needed, 9½ yards of material 22 inches wide, 6½ yards 36, or 6½ yards 44 or 48, and 20 inches wide for the trimming; the width at the lower edge is 4 yards and 14 inches. The pattern No. 887 is cut in sizes 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52, 54, 56, 58, 60, 62, 64, 66, 68, 70, 72, 74, 76, 78, 80, 82, 84, 86, 88, 90, 92, 94, 96,
